- 55 Two volumes of antient and modern cards, elegantly bound in Russia. In the first leaf is the following note:
 The antient cards in this volume, with others, (duplicates,) and the drawings in the second volume, were purchased by me out of the collection of Dr. Stukeley. The drawings were produced by the doctor, the 9th of November, 1720, to the Society of Antiquaries, observing that the cards had been given him by Thomas Rawlinson, Esq. being two pieces of the cover of an old book, supposed to be Claudian, printed before 1500; and that there was a leaf or two of an old edition of Erasmus's Adages pasted between the layers of the cards, which, being laid stratum super stratum, composed two pasteboards, and made the cover of the books. The doctor took the pains to separate the cards, out of which I have chosen a complete pack, and, the better to preserve so singular a curiosity, have had it bound, together with the above-mentioned drawings and some modern French cards.
 It is observable, in these antient cards, that there are no aces nor queens, but, instead of the latter, there are knights.
 On the antiquity of playing-cards, see "Recherches historiques sur les Cartes à jouer," by Bullet, who thinks they were not invented before the XIV. century; see also the "Idée générale d'une Collection complète d'Estampes."

- X 126 The Byble, which is all the Holy Scripture, in which are containd the Olde and Newe Testament, truelye and purelye translated into Englysh. By Thomas Mattheue. Without place. Richard Grafton and Edward Whitchurch, 1537. In folio.

The name of Mattheue is a fictitious one, the translation being that of Tyndal and Coverdale. This copy is remarkable for the forgery in Romans I. of Paul, an kneave of Jesus Christ; of which there is a particular account in Lewis's History of the English Translations of the Bibles, where it is observed, that the impostor, who committed the forgery, endeavoured, by altering the date, &c. to make the copy pass for one of a pretended edition in 1520.

This

This title I have taken from the address of the editor, N. O. to the author, who is called Master P. G. The title-page runs thus:

"Rede me and be not wrothe,

"For I saye nothyng but trothe.

"I will ascende, makynge my state so hye,

"That my pomposse honoure shall never dye."

Under these lines is a satyrical coat of arms intended by the author for Cardinal Wolsey, beneath which is this verse:

"O caryse, when thou thynkest least of all,

"With confusion thou shalt have a fall."

The book is without name of place or printer, and without date; but probably printed between the years 1523 and 1531, whilst Clement VII. was pope; for the last page has these lines:

"Pope Clemente, the sonne of an whoore,

"To destroye man from hell hath ascended."

This is one of the first books printed in English against the pope; it is addressed unto the Christian reader by Richarde Brightwell, which is a fictitious name that John Fryth made use of. In a book entitled, "Yet a Course at the Romysh Fox," it is said, "As touchynge the Reuelacyō of Antichrist, though he [Fryth] ded translate yt out of a foren tonge into Englyshe, with an Antithesis annexed vnto it, yet was yt not of hys makynge."

 Privilegiis Ecclesiæ Cantuariensis, cum Archiepiscopis ejusdem 70. An. Dom. 1572. Excusum Londini, in ædibus Johannis Dail.

The several copies of this edition (which is a singular curiosity) differ so much, that I add here the particulars of which the present one consists. It has, in various places, MS. corrections of the archbishop.

On the inside of the cover is a MS. note of Mr. T.
 Rawlinson's, (whose copy it had been,) that it had been collated, and, according to his best thoughts, was perfect.

Under the above note is the figure 3, which is explained by an original letter from Dr. Drake at the end of the book, wherein he says, this copy, thus numbered by him, was the best of four in Mr. Rawlinson's collection.

On the first blank leaf is a MS. note, by some antiquary, asserting, amongst other particulars, that this copy contains more than any other single one; and, on the other page of that leaf, fronting the title, is pasted a print of Archbishop Parker, by Remigius Hogenberg.

The title.

Preface, in which the writer attributes all praise of the work to Archbishop Parker: this preface is contained in Third Day's Sale.

in two leaves, not paged, but with the signatures ¶. i. and ¶. ij. In the margins are MS. notes concerning the variations in the Hanau edition.

A leaf containing the arms of the sees of the archbishoprics and bishoprics, empaled with the arms of the then archbishops and bishops.

Two leaves containing a chronological table of the 70 archbishops of Canterbury, under what king, and in what year of his reign, made, how long they sat, when they died, &c. ending with the consecration of Archbishop Parker. These two leaves have the signatures ¶. j. and ¶. i. j.

One leaf, signature ¶. ij. containing a table, in eight columns, of all the archbishops and bishops in 1572, of what university they were members, &c. &c. and an alphabetical table of reference to the lives of the archbishops.

De Vetustate Britannicæ Ecclesiæ Testimonia, contained in 45 pages. Signatures A. i. to G. i.

The Life of Augustine, in 4 columns; 24 pages. Signatures A. j. to C. iiij.

The Lives of the Archbishops of Canterbury, beginning with a different one of Augustine, page 1 and signature A. i. and ending with Pole at page 424 and signature II. ij. In various places are MS. notes, and accounts of variations in another copy and in the Hanau edition.

The Life of Archbishop Parker, in 15 leaves, paged at bottom 1 to 21; but, between 18 and 19, are three leaves not paged.

A vellum leaf, entitled, Catalogus Cancellariorum, &c. Acad. Cantabrig. ab an. 1500 usque ad an. 1571. On the reverse are the arms of the university, the colleges, and halls, with the chancellor's seal.

Another vellum leaf, containing a platform of the schools, the arms of the kingdom and of the university of Cambridge; on the reverse, a portrait of Queen Elizabeth.

Sixteen pages, containing a list of the chancellors, &c. of Cambridge, continued in MS. to 1573.

Pages 17 to 24, (the last not numbered,) containing titles of the university's charters, &c. the errors of the press corrected in MS.

A blank leaf.

A table

A table of the bishops educated at Cambridge from 1500 to 1571, one leaf.

A blank leaf.

Index, 7 leaves.

Three pages in MS. being a Catalogue of Books given, in 1574, by Archbishop Parker, to the public Library, Cambridge.

A MS. note, concerning the variations in the Hanau edition and in another copy.

371 The Treatyses perteynyng to Hawkinge, Huntynge, and Fysshynge with an Angle, with other dyuers playfaunt Materes belongynge unto Noblesse; and also a ryght noble Treatise of the Lygnage of Cotarmours, ending with a Treatise which specyfyeth of blasynge of Armys. Enprinted at Westmestre, by Wynkin de Worde, the Yere of thyncarnation of our Lorde M.CCCC.Lxxxvi.

This title I have drawn from various parts of the book, which is of the second edition; the first was printed ten years before at St. Alban's, and has therefore been called the Book of St. Alban's. At the end of the Treatise of Hunting, which is in verse, are these words: "Explicit Dame Julyans Bernes doctrine in her boke of huntynge." In the Treatise of Fishing there are some wood cuts; and, in that of the Blasing of Arms, the arms are all painted in their proper colours, and each described in Latin, French, and English.

 This book is a very great curiosity, and has given rise to much dispute among the writers on early printing. It was never seen by De Bure or any of the foreign typographical writers. There are only two more copies known in the world: one in the Bodleian library, the other at Cambridge.

the translation, as printed at the end of the seventh book, is an error of Caxton's; it should be 1387, the 10th year of King Richard II. On the last leaf of the index is written, in an old hand, "Presens liber pti-
 " net ad Willm Purde, emp't a Willmo Caxton,
 " Reg Imp'ssor, vicesimo Novembris, anno regni Rg'
 " Edwardi quarti vicesimo secundo." This is the only notice that I have met with of Caxton's being called king's printer.

- 487 The Recule of the Hystories of Troye, composed and drawen out of dyuers Bookes of Latyn into Frenshe, by the right venerable Persone and worshipfull Man, Raoul le Feure, Preeft, in the Yere from Thincarnation of our Sauour Christ MCCCCLXiiii. and translated and drawen out of Frenshe into Englishe by William Caxton, Mercer, of the Cyte of London; begonne, in Brugis, in the Yere of our Lord God MCCCCLxix, on the fyrst Day Marche, and continued in Gaunt, and synfished in Coleyn the xix. Day September, a Thousand four Honderd lxxi.

This is the first book printed by Caxton, who, in the colophon at the end of the first book, advertises his readers of the invention of printing, in imitation of Fust and Schoiffer, as follows: " Thus ende I this book, " whyche I haue translated after myn auctor as nyghe " as God hath gyuen me connyng, to whom be gyuen " the laude and preysyng. And, for as moche as in " the wrytyng of the same my penne is worn, myn " hande wery and not stedfast, myn eyen dimed with " ouer moche lokyng on the whit paper, and my courage not so prone and redy to laboure as hit hath ben, and that age crepeth on me dayly and febleth all the bodye; and also because I haue promyside to dyuerce gentilmen, and to my frendes, to adresse to hem as hastely as I myght this said book: therfore I haue practysed and lerned, at my grete charge and dispense, to ordeyne this said book in prynte, after the maner and forme as ye may here see; and is not wreton with penne and ynke, as other bokes ben, to thende that euery man may haue them attones; for all the bookes of this storye, named the Recule of the Hystories of Troyes, and enprynted as ye here see, were begonne in oone day, and also synyfshid in oon day." A very fine copy, and quite complete.
